

Did You Know

By Pat J. Kirwin

THAT Pickaway-co medical science performed its first outstanding feat, a blood transfusion, on Oct. 22, 1874.

Edward Wells was a bright-looking 22-year-old Walnut-twp lad and worked on his father's farm. In early September of 1874 he was stricken with typhoid fever. His case grew worse and he suffered more each day. Four weeks elapsed and young Wells fell into unconsciousness.

Wells' father hurriedly hitched his horse to a buggy on Thursday morning, Oct. 22, 1874, and started for Circleville to get Dr. Nelson Turney, the family doctor and one of the city's best physicians. Typical of the physician of old, Dr. Turney quickly grabbed his medicine bag and drove with Mr. Wells to the boy's bedside.

When Dr. Turney reached the stricken youth's home, he ordered the elder Wells to drive to Nebraska, Walnut-twp, and bring Dr. Jones to the house. In the meantime, he prepared for the transfusion.

Mrs. Wells went out into a field and brought in a three-week-old lamb. Dr. Turney scraped a patch of wool from the lamb's neck and opened an artery into which he inserted a silver tube about three inches long. Then Dr. Jones arrived to assist him.

At the elbow of young Wells' left arm, an opening was made and a silver tube injected. The lamb was brought in and placed at the bedside of the youth. The two silver tubes were connected by a small rubber tube, 12 inches long and one-eighth of an inch in diameter.

AFTER the connection was made, the lamb's blood began to flow into the youth's left arm. Young Wells remained unconscious during the entire operation. The lamb's heart began to beat faster forcing more blood into the arm.

After ten minutes had elapsed, Dr. Turney severed the connecting tubes and announced that seven ounces of blood had been injected into the arm. The lamb was removed from a table and placed on the floor. Weak from exhaustion, it was unable to stand upright for three days.

This transfusion, the first in Pickaway-co was not a success, as the young patient lived but several hours after the operation.

Although unsuccessful, Circleville newspapers gave several columns of space to the delicate operation. They pointed out that the first blood transfusion took place in Paris in 1600. By the early 19th century, medical science had improved its method and was finishing the operations with comparative success. A lamb was used in all cases during this early period and it was not until several years later that the blood of humans was used in the transfusions.

That in November, 1874, Pickaway-co was honored with the elections of Hon. A. T. Walling to the Congress of the United States and Professor C. S. Smart, superintendent of the city's schools, to the post of state director of education. The congressional district which elected Mr. Walling was composed of Franklin, Fairfield, Perry and Pickaway counties. He served two terms in the national House of Representatives, where in 1876 during the Hayes-Tilden election controversy, he made himself famous by the declaration, "If fraud is law, filibustering is patriotism." Prof. Smart assumed his duties in February, 1875, and served four years. He had an excellent record when he left the post.

FOOD SHORTAGE SEEN IF DROUGHT GOES ON; NO RELIEF PREDICTED

Mercury Climbs Far Over 100 in Various Parts of Country

10 DEAD IN CHICAGO

Only Half of Crop Yield Estimated

CHICAGO, June 2.—Prayers of sweltering millions in the parched central states went unheeded today with drought and record breaking heat spreading further destruction among farm crops of the middle west.

Unless general rains fall over the sun-baked plains states within two weeks a food shortage is imminent, agricultural experts admitted. Dr. W. C. Coffey, federal farm relief director for the north-west, declared:

"The truth is the United States is threatened with a food shortage. Should the drought remain unbroken for another two weeks practically every section of the country known as the food surplus producing area, will be wiped out. The situation is acute."

Yet government weather experts could offer no immediate hope of relief. Temperatures that climbed well above the 100 degree mark yesterday to shatter records in many areas still held sway. There was still no promise of general rains, although conditions in the upper air strata were forecast as "unsettled."

A broiling sun that was blamed for ten deaths here in 24 hours blazed down out of virtually cloudless skies. Crops that have thus far withstood the ravages of the long-continued drought were being parched in the fields.

Heavy local storms at St. Louis and at Urbana, Ill., brought relief to those sections. Rain, followed by hail, broke a 105 degree heat wave at Urbana.

Only once before in Chicago's history was the official maximum temperature of 102.2 degrees exceeded. That was in July, 1901. The sweltering temperature caused ten deaths here eight others were reported dying and two met death by drowning.

Downstate Illinois fared worse, with temperatures of 107 degrees reported at Ottawa, Bloomington, Hoopeston and Morris.

All records went by the board at Milwaukee with an official recording of 104 degrees.

The mercury climbed to 108 at New Ulm, Minn.

LAST 24 HOURS MORE

Weather reports indicated that the extreme heat would continue for another 24 hours at least over most of the middle west.

Drought conditions were becoming increasingly more acute. Total precipitation for the year has been only 4.56 inches as compared with the normal fall of 13.04.

Furnishing feed for livestock, particularly dairy cattle, presented the gravest problem. Metropolitan

Blizzard Strikes Butte, Mont., Today

BUTTE, Mont., June 2.—A cooling rainfall today brought Montana farmers relief from drought and grasshoppers.

All parts of the state, from Dillon in the southwest to Glendive on the eastern border, received a soaking rain. Snow fell in the higher mountains.

Cold weather accompanying the rain wiped out a large portion of the millions of grasshoppers that threatened to take over what crops had grown. In Butte a swirling blizzard did considerable damage to trees and shrubbery.

97 DEGREES HERE FRIDAY

Norwalk and Bucyrus Have High Marks of 103 in State; 108 in Wisconsin.

NO WATER SHORTAGE

Harry B. Denman, manager of the Ohio Water Service Co., said Saturday that although the water supply is the lowest in four years there is no immediate danger of a shortage.

The water is still being purified with chlorine.

Circleville temperature reached a new high for June 1, Friday, of 97 degrees. The lowest mark touched during the night was 70.

Following are some typical "heat wave" temperatures in Ohio and the middle west during the past 24 hours:

COLUMBUS, June 2.—A warning against use of water from abandoned wells and springs because of the water shortages throughout the state was issued today by state health director H. S. Southard.

At the same time, he offered advice "the best way to keep cool" and a "hot weather diet." Dress lightly, don't get excited and never hurry, said Dr. Southard. The diet, he advised should include plenty of cold vegetables and little meat.

The health director warned that all water from questionable sources such as old wells and springs should be boiled before it is used.

LIQUOR PRICE CUT

COLUMBUS, June 2.—Taking an upper-cut at illicit liquor traffic, the state department of liquor control prepared today to put into effect Monday a schedule of reduced retail liquor prices ranging from five to 30 cents on a bottle.

Besides combatting the bootleg competition, the reduced schedule of prices was expected by state liquor department officials to quiet grumblings of the buying public against the prices charged in the state stores.

Further reductions "when it is found possible to make them" will be announced later, Col. John A. Hughes, director of the state liquor department promised today in announcing the new liquor price list.

3 DIE IN TRAGIC ACCIDENTS

BOY, 13, DIES IN DEEP HOLE

DARBY CREEK SCENE

Discards Inner Tube, Sinks to Watery Grave

Leaping into a 20-foot hole in Darby creek, three miles north of Darbyville, Friday afternoon, John Virgil Johnson, 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Johnson, of near Darbyville, drowned despite efforts of his playmate, Eugene Ward, 13, to save him.

Dr. C. E. Bowers, county coroner, who investigated the drowning, with Deputy Sheriff Bryan Custer, pronounced the death accidental.

The youths left the Johnson home at 1:30 p. m. and started to play in the creek about an hour later. The Johnson boy could not swim, it is reported, but took an automobile inner-tube with him. He swam with the aid of the tube for a while but tossed it to the shore thinking he could remain above the water without it.

He again leaped into the creek and immediately went down. It is reported the Ward boy, who could swim, went in after him but almost drowned trying to get him out. The Ward boy, seeing that he could not rescue the stricken youth, swam from the water and called workmen in an adjoining field.

Several men came to the scene and broke a boat loose from the shore. The youth was drowned before they could recover him. He had been in the water about 30 minutes.

The location of the fatality is on the Mill Carpenter farm. Besides his parents, a half-brother, Howard Johnson, of Columbus, survives the youth.

FUNERAL MONDAY

Funeral services will be conducted Monday at 4 p. m. at the Darbyville Methodist Episcopal church with burial in the village cemetery by the A. J. Hott Co., Commercial Point.

CINCINNATI, June 2.—A party of socially prominent Cincinnati vacationing in the Michigan woods today planned an immediate return to their homes after one of their number was drowned when their sailboat sank in Lake Charlevoix in northern Michigan yesterday.

SWAM TO SHORE

The victim of the tragedy was Louis K. De Bus, Cincinnati manufacturer. Two women companions, Mrs. Henrietta Coke and Mrs. Florence Mitheofer, both of Cincinnati, managed to swim to shore 300 yards away when the sailboat sprang a leak and sank.

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., June 2.—The body of David King, 22, popular member of the younger set here, was recovered from the Tuscarawas river today after the youth was drowned when he and a party of four youths went swimming late last night to escape the heat.

King, unable to swim, went beyond his depth and his companions were unable to rescue him because of the darkness. He was the son of City Fireman Harold King.

MILFORD, O., June 2.—The Little Miami river today had claimed another victim. Earl Moore, 16-year-old high school student, was drowned yesterday when he went beyond his depth. He could not swim.

OIL FLAMES RAGING IN CALIFORNIA AREA

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Cal., June 2.—Raging over an area equivalent to more than eight city blocks one of the most spectacular oil fires in recent years early today was frustrating all efforts to bring it under control.

The fire started shortly before midnight when a line from which high test gasoline was being loaded exploded and ignited from nearby boilers.

Already five huge oil derricks have been destroyed and eleven storage tanks of 12,000 gallon capacity are blazing.

Police expected the damage to reach over the $250,000 mark.

TOLEDO STRIKE TERROR FADES

Electrical Workers Win Increase in Salary; Guardsmen Being Removed.

TOLEDO, June 2.—Prospects of a general strike in Toledo faded sharply today as a result of the settlement of the threatened walk-out of the Electrical Workers' Union which had been set for 7 o'clock this morning.

By a vote of 154 to 34, the electrical workers last night declared themselves in favor of "no strike." They had won at the conference table a 20 per cent increase in wages—a smashing victory.

With the settlement of this strike, which would have paralyzed the city's industries, the skies cleared in labor embattled Toledo where three automobile plant strikes are still in progress.

There was a strong hope that the strike of the Electric Auto-Lite company would soon be settled. If that is accomplished virtually all danger of a general strike will be over.

Fully one-third of the nearly 1,000 Ohio National guardsmen on duty at the Auto-Lite plant have been withdrawn and additional troops are soon to leave. There seemed to be little danger of the renewal of rioting at this plant where two more were killed and many injured a week ago last Thursday.

CYCLIST HIT NEAR DERBY

Ernest Blessing, 20, Darby-twp Graduate, Has Fractured Skull

'BUDDY' HURT, TOO

Vehicle Struck by Automobile Friday Night

Ernest Blessing, 20, a graduate of the Darby-twp high school two years ago and employed by that school board as a bus driver, died of a fractured skull Friday night after his motorcycle collided with an auto on the Harrisburg-pk near Derby.

Blessing's skull was badly mangled. Charles Higgins, 21, of Derby who was riding on the motorcycle with the fatally injured youth, has a fractured leg and serious internal injuries. He was knocked more than 20 feet by the automobile.

5 NEGROES HELD

Five negroes, believed to be residents of Urbancrest, Franklin-co, who were in the automobile, were held by Franklin-co authorities pending investigation of the wreck.

Coroner E. E. Smith, of Franklin-co, was investigating the death. Both the deceased and the injured youth are widely known in the northwest part of Pickaway-co where they have numerous friends.

Blessing was born Nov. 10, 1913, a son of John and Pearl Graham Blessing. After his mother's death in 1918 he went to live with an aunt, Mrs. Nellie Bauman, of Derby.

He is survived by his father, a resident of Hotel Alms, Cincinnati; a sister, Helen, foster-daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Hill, Williamsport; a brother, William of Columbus, and another sister, Miss Goldie of Derby.

FUNERAL MONDAY

Funeral services in charge of Mr. Hill will be Monday at 2 p. m. at the Derby Methodist Episcopal church with burial in Mt. Sterling cemetery.

SANTA ANA, Cal., June 2.—Little Mary Eberguerry, 7, today rested her emaciated body in a hospital here after her rescue from a chicken coop in which police officers claim she had been confined for several months.

The girl's mother, Mrs. Josie Eberguerry, who police say kept the child in the coop because of the belief that Mary had an "evil eye," was arrested by deputy sheriff's and released on her own recognizance for a hearing Tuesday.

The Church Invites You

WHAT IS REAL LIFE?

We are so busy making a living that we often forget that it is more important to make a life. We forget that real life is eternal life which Christ says is "to know the only true God." This involves relationship, companionship and friendship.

The highest and best life is found in relationship with the highest and best person. To know God is to know Him as our best friend—something more than knowing a fact.

The church exists to effect relationship, companionship and friendship with God and a fellowship with His children. Why not accept the invitation and COME TO CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY?

D. CARL YODER.

The Baby in the Basket

Thirty four years ago during one of India's most horrible famines, a starving mother came to a mission home at Damoh. On her head she carried a basket and in that basket was her baby.

Would the Sahib and Mamaji missionaries take her child so that he would not die?

The missionaries took the child and cared for him. He in time became a good student, a great athlete and was honest, clean and fair. He was the same sort of boy scout and above all a true Christian leader. As he became older he was made head man of the industrial shop and there today he teaches the boys of India the dignity of labor. He is a boy scout leader and of great influence in the community. He and his family provide just one example of what Christianity is doing for home life in India.

Book Review

THE MESSAGE OF THE PARABLES by McFadyen, Funk and Wagnalls Co. in 33 chapters discusses the parables of Jesus one by one, revealing new angles in them and new reasons for their power upon the minds of men. The whole is an interesting and illuminating study of the little stories used so effectively in presenting his teachings.

He is wise who says nothing when he has nothing to say.

Dr. Harold Hough, dean of Drew Seminary, has been invited to deliver the annual sermon next September in the Cathedral in Switzerland before the League of Nations.

William Phelps Hall was elected president of the American Tract Society for the 29th time at the recent annual meeting in the Collegiate Church of St. Nicholas, New York.

During the past year the Jerry McAuley Water Street Mission in New York supplied 106,847 free meals and 19,885 free beds. More than 500 gospel services were held, at which 6,294 men expressed determination to accept Christ. The mission was started by Jerry McAuley, a reformed convict. It represented the first attempt to minister to the physical and spiritual needs of men in an effort at rehabilitation.

Brotherhood Day which was observed by Christians and Jews throughout the United States Sunday, April 29th, was also observed in Hawaii at a Brotherhood service held in the Buddhist Temple.

A resolution inviting the Roman Catholic, Protestant and Jewish church in the United States to engage in a united campaign to clean the motion picture industry of its unwholesome elements, was introduced at the convention of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of New York recently.

Deep under the debris of centuries the ruins of the temple of Dagon have been uncovered by archaeologists from the University of Pennsylvania museum.

This is the first time a temple definitely mentioned in the Old Testament has been unearthed. Saul's head was fastened in the temple of Dagon according to the Bible story. By the side of the temple, excavations revealed the ruins of the house of Ashtaroth also mentioned in the Bible as the place where the Philistines placed the armor of Saul, as related in the first book of Samuel.

He is wise who says nothing when he has nothing to say.

LESSON

Lesson for June 3

JESUS IN THE SHADOW OF THE CROSS

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 26:31-46. GOLDEN TEXT—And he went a little farther, and fell on his face, and prayed, saying, O my Father, if it be possible, let this cup pass from me; nevertheless not as I will, but as thou wilt. Matthew 26:39.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Praying. JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus in Gethsemane.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Jesus Praying in the Garden. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Gethsemane.

I. Plotting the Death of Jesus (vv. 1-5).

Jesus, with divine insight, predicted not only the fact of his death but its time and manner. He was not taken by surprise since for this pre-eminent purpose he came into the world (Heb. 2:14). He deliberately walked up to death. He knew that the Passover would find its fulfillment in his death, for he was the antitypical lamb thereof. The Jewish authorities in secret conclave were plotting to silence his voice by putting him to death. It was the divine purpose that he die. In their wickedness they were plotting to do that which God had ordained. In spite of themselves they were moving in the line of God's decree.

II. Mary of Bethany Anoints Jesus (vv. 6-13).

1. The place of the act (vv. 6, 7). This anointing occurred when Jesus was at meat in Simon's house.

2. The indignation of the disciples (vv. 8, 9). The action of the disciples was in strange contrast with Mary's love. Judas Iscariot was the leader, but the whole apostolic company were led by him. The real thing that hurt Judas was the loss of the money for which the ointment might have been sold; not that he cared for the poor (John 12:5, 6).

3. Mary defended by Christ (vv. 10-13). Jesus could not allow his most appreciative disciple to lie under this censure so he came to her rescue. In spite of their criticism, he had nothing but the highest praise for her deed. As a result of Christ's defense, Judas is so stung by rebuke that he hastens away to betray his Lord.

4. The meaning of this act (vv. 12, 13). By sitting at Jesus' feet in loving fellowship, she obtained a grasp of truth which none of the other disciples had. She saw that his body was to be broken and that his precious life was to go out. She entered into fellowship with his sufferings and the joys of his resurrection. This she showed in the symbolic act of lavishing her most precious possession upon him. Knowing that no living person could minister to him in that dread hour, she did this service in loving anticipation.

III. Jesus Betrayed (vv. 14-30).

1. The bargain of betrayal (vv. 14-16). Satan had so complete a mastery over Judas that he sold his Lord for the price of a slave (Exod. 21:32).

2. The betrayal announced (vv. 17-30). This took place while they were eating the Passover. It may be that the reason for this announcement at this time was to afford Judas a last opportunity to repent. Jesus' words, "He that dipeth his hand with me in the dish the same shall betray me," revealed the darkness of the crime.

IV. The Disciples Warned (vv. 31-35).

This took place as they walked from the upper room to the Garden of Gethsemane. He plainly told them, "All ye shall be offended because of me this night," quoting Zechariah 13:7 as proof. Peter vehemently protested that although all should forsake him, he would not. How little Peter knew of his weakness. His self-confidence was his snare.

V. Jesus Praying (vv. 36-46).

1. The place—the Garden of Gethsemane (v. 36). Gethsemane means "oil press." It was a place some three-quarters of a mile east of Jerusalem where oil was crushed out of the olives.

2. His companions (v. 37). Peter, James, and John, who had been with him on the Mount of Transfiguration, are permitted to go with him in the deep shadow of the garden.

3. Jesus sorrowing even unto death (vv. 37, 38). The cause of his suffering was not primarily physical but spiritual. He was being made sin for us (II Cor. 5:21).

4. The prayer itself (v. 39). "O my Father, if it be possible, let this cup pass from me." What was this cup? It was not a prayer to be delivered from the cross. The idea that he desired to escape from the cross and thus stop all his redemptive work is not to be entertained. Redemption through the sacrifice of himself was the supreme purpose of his coming into the world. The holiness and perfection of his nature moved him to shrink from the mountain of sin which was resting upon him. Though the cup was bitter he bowed in submission to the Father's will.

What are the results for leadership? Dr. H. H. Horne of New York University has answered this question as follows: "Have you a strong body? Have you ever broken a bad habit? Can you exercise self-control when things go wrong? Are you habitually cheerful and free from grouchy spells? Can you keep your head in an emergency? Do your associates respect and cooperate with you? Can you maintain discipline without using authority? Can you handle a group of dissatisfied persons successfully? Are you patient in dealing with nervous persons? Are delicate situations turned over to you? Do you make and keep friends easily? Can you adjust yourself to strangers easily? Are you free from embarrassment before superiors? Do you express ideas without appearing overbearing or narrow-minded? Have you tact, self-confidence in yourself and your cause? Have you a co-operative spirit? Have you power of vision? Can you sense yourself as an agent in God's plan? If you can answer 'yes' to these questions, then you fulfill the qualifications of leadership."

Eshelman Feeds Annex First Shut-out Victory

Eshelman Feeds knocked off the first shut-out of the year Friday evening winning from the Given Oils by an 8-0 count. All the Eshelman scoring was done in the first three innings with Ike Davis on the mound for the colored team. Bob Jones stopped the Feeds cold after he took the hill.

Eddie Callahan was supreme. He had the Given swinging at balls two feet over their heads and never in trouble. The only runner the Oils got to third base was Maynard Johnson who singled in the ninth inning, stole second, went to third when Lewis was out to the first basemen. Callahan put on the brakes with only one out and fanned Jackson and A. Jones to end the game.

ONLY FOUR ERRORS

Fewer errors occurred in this game than in any played to date, each team being guilty of only two. The Eshelman's got 11 hits against four for the losers. Callahan besides pitching masterfully hit a double and triple.

Charles Scott and Jim Dade umpired the game.

Sunday afternoon the Circle City dairy and the Circleville Oils meet at 2 o'clock in a regular league game postponed from Tuesday evening. George Crum will make his appearance as the king mogul of the Oils team and promised a stronger club. He has added Don and Howard White to his roster, helping the team's speed. Earl Imier's dairymen are coming fast and should make things plenty exciting for the Circleville Oils.

About This And That

BY THE SECOND GUESSER

THIS RIGHT-HANDED PITCHING marvel, Jerome Herman Dean, known to youse guys as the Great Dizzy, went out Friday and did his brother, Paul, Dizzy the Younger, some good in a financial way—Jerome Herman refused to ascend the mound for his St. Louis Cardinal team until Paul's salary was boosted to five grand—Jerome Herman's strike is now ended and everything is calm in the Cardinal camp; the amount of salary increase was not announced.

These Dean boys have won 11 ball games for the Cardinals, six for Big Dizzy, five for Little Dizzy, who is hurt for his first season with the Breadonites.

This might be a mighty risky gamble but Eddie Callahan, Eshelman pitcher, tried it and finished ahead Friday evening. He offered to buy a beer for every hit the Given Oil team obtained, in return for a beer every time he fanned a batter. Someone took him up, we know not who, and Callahan finished ahead by nine beers. He fanned 13 while four safeties were gleaned off his delivery.

WE'D ADVISE THE COLUMBUS Red Birds to recall Tom Angley, Eddie Delker and a few other ball players if they want to go anywhere in the association race. The Birds are getting pretty fair pitching but the batting department has been almost nil for quite a while. Angley and Delker are both out on 24-hour option; Elmira is their stopping place.

BIRDS BLOW LEAD

COLUMBUS, June 2—Smarter from the second defeat handed them in as many days in Louisville, the fourth-place Columbus Red Birds were to meet the Colonels again this afternoon.

Playing before a ladies' day crowd of 3,000, the Red Birds fought to a 4 to 4 score until the ninth when they dropped the decision by one run, 5 to 4. Funk, Louisville third sacker, hit the single that scored Olivares with the winning run.

Weinert and Bass served them for the Colonels and Cross and Teachout pitched for the Red Birds.

TOLEDO, June 2—The first game of the current Indianapolis Toledo series was marked up as a loss by the Mud Hens today after they suffered a 4 to 1 defeat at the hands of the Indians.

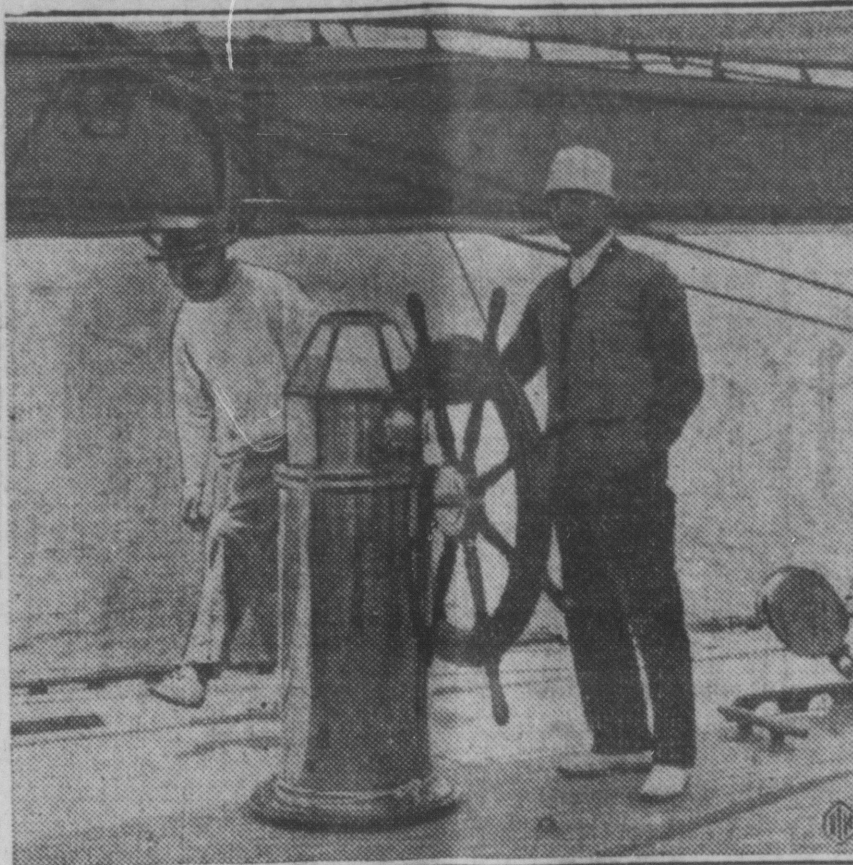

Turner, the Indian hurler, held the local American Association club to five scattered hits and pitched shut-out ball until the ninth when Toledo scored its lone tally.

Larkin and Sunda did the twirling for the Mud Hens.

Mother, 5 Infants

The pretty young mother would be able to leave her bed within a week or ten days but due to the tremendous physical strain she has gone through it is doubtful if she will ever be able to nurse her children whose successful fight for life has amazed the world's entire medical profession.

Nurse Yvonne Leroux reported this morning that the children had enjoyed almost a perfect night. It was the first night in 92 hours that the nurse was not forced to feed the youngest baby, Marie, drops of Jamaica rum to stimulate heart action.

CALLANDER, Ont., June 2.—Dr. A. R. Dafee will charge the Dionne family just $15 for delivering the quintuplet daughters born last Monday morning.

Fifteen dollars is the standing charge for the delivery and care of new-born infants in this desolate wilderness—regardless of the number of babies involved.

SHORTAGE

Chicago and other cities of Illinois were facing a threatened milk shortage due to pasturage destruction.

The yield of four leading grain crops will be only 54.3 per cent of normal, according to surveys issued by four Chicago board of trade crop experts. Drought has wiped out the nation's wheat surplus, it was further asserted.

Due principally to the feed shortage hog receipts at the un'on stockyards totaled 20,000 animals. Pigs sold as low as 50 cents a hundredweight. Flour prices rose 26 to 50 cents a barrel due to the destruction of wheat fields.

Recognizing an "unprecedented emergency" due to the drought Gov. Floyd B. Olson of Minnesota declared an embargo against all cattle being sent into the state for purposes other than slaughter. This action was taken to conserve Minnesota's depleted feed and fodder supplies.

Airplanes were sent to all sections of the northwest forage area. Reports from western Minnesota said that peace officers were shooting dying cattle in several sectors.

What of the Curfew?

A QUESTION was asked us the other day. It was "Why isn't Circleville's curfew put into use in an effort to combat the juvenile situation which has become deplorable on the city's uptown streets?"

It is a timely question and one which would certainly obtain results.

There is no question but that delinquency follows, street loitering. Nearly every evening crowds of girls and boys, few of the girls over 15 years of age, can be seen on Court-st, especially in the block between Main and Franklin-sts, on the west side. There is no denying that it has become a serious situation and one that deserves early action.

The curfew, we understand, is still usable. A city ordinance could be dug up, revised and put into effect ordering boys and girls off the streets by 9 o'clock, or whatever time is thought desirable by local officials.

The juvenile problem is one that cannot be scoffed at by city or county officials, and this is just a suggestion for its remedy.

Now that the LaFollettes have formed a third party, a membership drive is next in order.

The Bench and Money

HOW a judge can bank $166,600 in 44 months during which time his salary was only $40,035 in one of the questions raised in proceedings brought by the New York Bar association to remove Municipal Court Justice Harold L. Kunster.

It has been an unusual thing in New York for public officials to make deposits greatly exceeding their salaries over specified periods of time. Such a practice has been uncovered more than once, especially while the city was under Tammany rule.

It was brought out in Justice Kunster's case that he began making his deposits soon after he took office but that he stopped having a bank account just about the time the Seabury investigation—made notable by uncovering Jimmy Walker's tin box—got under way. The justice readily explained that he closed out his accounts, carried in four banks, "because the banks were charging $3 month to carry the account and I could not afford to pay it." He was equally ready with an explanation concerning the aggregate of his deposits. It was an "in-and-out" process he said, he making borrowing and withdrawals from a bank one day and deposits the next. It was disclosed that he obtained one loan of $3,000 from the head of an automobile casualty company which "often" was a defendant in accident cases heard in his court.

Whatever may be the outcome of the proceedings against the jurist, the bar association must be commended for its efforts to clean up the New York city judiciary.

Aviation Advances

TWO important advances in aviation are promised in experiments made by the national advisory committee on aeronautics at the Langley memorial laboratory at Langley Field, Va.

The demonstrations were given at the annual engineering conference held by the committee at what is said to be the most complete plant of its kind in the world. One of the two most promising experiments related to cutting down landing speed while the other had to do with getting more horsepower out of engines without increasing the size or weight of the engines.

A reduction in landing speed is made possible by the use of high-lift devices and a new method of lateral control that is said to represent the first important advance in this field in 20 years. These

CHAPTER THIRTY-SEVEN

Stanley poked up the fire and put away the tea things. She laid the chops for dinner in their pan and put two potatoes over the flame to boil and prepared a salad. In the next room, now that Marcia and Gerda were gone, she could hear the steady clack of John Harmon's typewriter.

She had had a bad fifteen minutes, but now that she was alone she found that she was oddly, coldly detached. Her hands did things mechanically. Her mind worked in much the same way.

Drew was engaged... Drew was going to be married... in June... to a girl named Janet... That ought to end everything, settle the whole foolish situation once and for all—but it didn't. Any more than her marrying John Harmon had ended everything—settled anything. This feeling that she had for Drew was something between Drew and herself which nothing else could possibly alter or affect. There had been a time when she had felt that this wasn't so, when she had thought that surely the love she had for John Harmon must completely destroy the desire that she had for Drew. She had clung to this belief pathetically and now she relinquished it with a dumb sort of pain—but relinquish it she did, for she knew now, when she faced the fact of his marriage, that nothing was changed, that nothing—not John Harmon, nor the girl in Chicago, nor Drew's utter and unbroken silence—could alter the feeling which at the mere mention of his name possessed her.

Suddenly she felt tired and horribly lonely. She knew a great desire to go to John Harmon; to tell him everything, find solace and comfort and forgetfulness in the pressure of his steady arms, blot out the memory of Drew's hot, demanding kisses with the sweetness of John Harmon's tender ones; and thus in abandoning herself to the gentleness of John Harmon's love gain release from that other, and less worthy emotion.

She crossed the room and threw open the door to the study. John Harmon was bent over his typewriter, his hair rumpled, his eyes tired, but his smile, weary though it was, was full of welcome.

"Hello, Stan. What the devil's the matter? You look completely fagged—those women too much for you?"

Looking at him sitting there, worn and unmistakably fagged himself, Stanley knew suddenly that she was not going to tell him anything—not now, at least, when he was so obviously in need of rest and food and relaxation himself.

"Just about—and you've worked quite long enough for one day. How's it going?" She motioned to the pile of manuscript he had piled up since lunch.

"It's going fine," John Harmon sat back in his chair and ran his fingers through his hair, his eyes shining through their fatigue. "I've caught something this time, Stanley, something real and warm and pulsing. It's the sort of thing I used to dream about doing—and then deserted for the other, you know, the clever situation, the amusing phrase. That sort of thing—I can't get away from it entirely—I'm not sure I want to—but it's relegated to where it belongs. It's no longer the end and aim of my writing. My people are real this time, Stan, they sacrifice a lot in cleverness, a lot in brilliance—but they're human, human way through."

"I'm glad, John Harmon, glad Dennis was right, glad she had the courage to tell you, glad you had the courage to find yourself again. Life isn't always as simple as that." She turned abruptly and went back to her gas plate, tying an apron over her blue frock.

John Harmon drew a hand across rather puzzled brown eyes—Stanley had sounded a bit fed up with things, a bit cynical, unlike herself. Had those women been disagreeable, made her restless, dissatisfied? But that wasn't fair to Stanley, to her good sense, her beautiful loyalty. He washed his hands, brushed his hair and went out to help her get the supper.

"I don't want Drew, darling. I want you. Will you believe that, John Harmon—always?"

Stanley was turning the chops in their iron pan, her back to him. "Shall I fix the coffee?" he asked, with a rather apparent attempt at cheerfulness.

"If you want to." He did so, wishing it required more effort. He felt awkward, helpless in the face of Stanley's continued silence. "Let's leave the dishes and go to a movie," he suggested with a simulated eagerness, rearranging an already perfectly set table.

"You know I don't like to leave the dishes, and anyway we can't afford movies twice a week—we've been once already."

"Well, I guess it won't break us to go again. Or perhaps you'd like to take a walk—it's going to be a grand night for walking."

Stanley transferred the chops to a small platter, took up the potatoes and turned to the ice-box for the salads.

"Can't I help you?" John Harmon stood just behind her, anxious-eyed, wondering what it was all about.

Slowly Stanley swung around and faced him. "I don't know whether you can or not, Drew is being married—in June."

She looked away swiftly, hating herself for having hurt him like that! Hating him for letting her see that she had.

"Oh," he said slowly, his hands slipping away from where they had rested lightly on her shoulders. "Drew, I'm afraid I'd nearly forgotten about—Drew, Stanley."

"I thought I had too—and now I find I haven't. I don't suppose I should have told you, John Harmon, a wife isn't supposed to tell her husband that she is—upset because a former lover is getting himself married." Stanley's voice broke on a high, thin note; for a horrifying moment she thought she was going to cry, or laugh foolishly, but she didn't, because John Harmon put his arms about her suddenly and held her fiercely to his heart.

"Don't talk about it any more—not right now anyway. And I'm glad you told me, darling."

He picked her up abruptly and carried her to the wing chair and sat down with her still in his arms.

After a long while, Stanley's arms crept up and drew his face down to hers. "You're precious, John Harmon, precious. And I'm a beast to hurt you so. I don't want Drew, darling. I want you. Will you believe that, John Harmon—always?"

"I will if you want me to," he told her and kissed her quickly before she should see the betraying wistfulness in his eyes.

A young and dancing April tripped in on the heels of an old and wind-blown March and the city awakened from its winter's lethargy, shook off its old clothes, and stepped forth clad scantily but delightfully in the pale green of bursting buds and the pale gold of spring sunlight.

Yellow crocuses thrust themselves into a flagrant beauty in the parks and violet petunias bloomed suddenly in window-boxes and pink geraniums were ranged in neat rows, like vegetables, in front of florists' shops. The shop windows were a splash of the certain shade of blue that was new that season and skirts were definitely long and waist lines had come to stay.

Stanley bought a new spring coat and an intriguing little violet hat and set her primroses in the open windows and thrilled to the whole gloriously refreshing phenomenon of seeing and feeling an old world made new again.

Since the afternoon of Marcia's visit she had put Drew and his engagement resolutely out of her mind. She felt very close to John Harmon these days; clung to him with a sort of childlike faith that he found heartbreakingly sweet. He knew, though she never spoke of Drew's engagement again, how much she had suffered; what he suffered himself he characteristically discounted as unimportant; where Stanley's unhappiness was concerned there could be no question of his own—he had put her first too long for it ever to be otherwise, but out of the tangle of their mutual unhappiness they had somehow, quite without spoken explanations, found understanding. They were, perhaps, closer to each other than they had ever been—flung together by an intangible need of each other which grew stronger from day to day.

President May Have Steering Committee to Guide NRA

WASHINGTON — Two prominent Englishmen, looking over the New Deal independently of each other recently made identical criticisms... They were Sir Stafford Cripps, left wing Labor leader, and John Maynard Keynes, famous economist. Both said that what the New Deal needed was a plan. They felt it was wandering rudderless from one policy to another without rhyme or reason... Whether or not this is a valid criticism, it is being taken seriously by some of the President's close advisers, especially a little group which argued with Keynes last week for several hours... As a result it is highly probable that this summer will see a little steering committee functioning at the President's right hand to keep the New Deal on a more even course.

Sentiment

Mrs. Anna Eleanor Roosevelt is as practical a First Lady as ever presided over the White House... But she has a deep sentimental streak. Only her intimate friends know why she is never without the thin gold chain around her neck, or what is on the end of it... The chain is a wedding gift from the President, and on it is attached a gold locket, bearing on one side the initials AER, and on the other FDR... The initialing is etched in diamonds.

Believe it or not, throughout the hour-and-a-half auto ride of General Hugh Johnson and Clarence Darrow by Johnson's invitation the subject of the NRA, or Darrow's report on it, never once was touched on — not even remotely... Each man waited for the other to raise the question and neither did... The conversation got started on General Grant, and by the time the visit was over had got down to Hannibal.

The Census Bureau is not all dry statistics. Says Dr. Stuart A. Rice, Assistant Director: "To the average person the word 'census' suggests an individual, who, in the words of a high school essay, 'goes around every ten years from house to house increasing the population.'"

Hog Caller

Democratic senatorial campaigns this year are no lally-da affairs... Ohio's Representative Charles V. Truax, who notes in his Congressional Directory biography that he has sold hogs to breeders in every state of the Union, and who is after the scalp of Senator Simeon D. Fess, recently refused to attend a dinner to which the latter also had been invited... And Texas' Senator Tom Connally, who has the secret good wishes of the Administration in his re-nomination duel with Young Joe Congressman, never refers to the latter, gives no indication that he

Women Safer Drivers

Denver—Women are safer drivers than men, according to a survey of Denver traffic accidents made by CWA workers under engineers. Their figures showed that but 5 per cent of the motorists involved in fatal accidents during 1932 and 1933 were of the fairer sex. The largest number of automobile deaths, they also discovered, were caused by cars driven by persons between the ages of 16 and 20 years.

New York's drinkers now are permitted to take their standing. But how long can they remain standing is the question.

Miss Frances Perkins says that workers must receive "a significant proportion" of the income of industry. Significant of what?

The Value of a Course in Physics

EDITOR'S NOTE:—This is the last of a series of articles by the faculty of Circleville high school which point out the value of certain elective courses in the curriculum.

By FRED WATTS

COURSES given in high school are for either cultural or practical value. Physics has both cultural and practical values. In this article both of these values will be pointed out.

The fundamental principles, as taught in physics, will enable the student to understand the operation of machines, and devices that surround him in every day life. It was supposed that several years ago the automobile had reached the height of perfection, and there were no new changes to be made. Immediately following that thought we had free-wheeling, floating power, no-draft ventilation, streamlining, knee-action, air balloon tires, and what not—in all of which the high school student is very much interested. All of these inventions are closely related to important principles in physics which today make up a very large part of the discussion in a physics recitation.

It is the physicist that has developed the marvels of this modern age; for example, the engineer plans the railroad with its bridges, tunnels and grades, together with the locomotive and its trains. Every step of this process requires a knowledge of physics.

It is by the discovery and application of physical laws that scientists and inventors have produced the telescope, telephone, steam engine, electric car, and other appliances which form so important a part of everyday life. The high school physics student of today will be the physicist of tomorrow. What is in store for the physicist of the future? That is a question which no one can accurately foretell. For instance, who could have predicted a century ago the marvels of this day? One invention can open up fields heretofore unheard of. Thus the discovery of the X-ray in 1895 gave us insight as to the structure of matter which has been the foundation of a large portion of modern physics.

Physics, probably more than any other high school subject, encourages straight thinking and develops reasoning ability.

Woe to him who speaks before thinking, or jumps at conclusions in the physics class! Making the acquaintance through biographies of the great physicists of the past and the hardships they had to overcome in order to follow their chosen work and make a contribution to world knowledge is very encouraging. Imagine a giant like Newton starting life as a mere three pounder! A few years ago the whole world looked with wonder at the chemist who, we thought, was going to produce life synthetically and solve the riddle of the universe. But today, through the bombardment of the molecule and the analysis of the ether waves and light rays, physics is fast taking the lead.

Seniors Write Autobiographies!

The experiences of the members of Miss Watson's first period Senior English are extensive, according to the papers handed in recently, each one telling the outstanding event in his life. Dale Ankrom considers the high honor of becoming valedictorian of his class the most prominent incident in his life. To Polly Briggs, making friends is the most important thing of her high school career.

The foremost happening in Martha Eaden's life was a trip from the Philippines to the United States. The outstanding event in Ned Hitchcock's life almost spelled disaster for him. He was, as he says, "not too politely hit by an automobile" and, as far as he is concerned, it need never happen again.

Floyd "Tumpy" Dunlap's most prominent occurrence is yet to

student opinion

What, in your estimation, are the chances for high school graduates to procure employment?
William Ashbrook:
"People say there are no jobs. There are plenty, if one has the initiative to go out and get them. If a high school graduate wants to be a day laborer all of his life, he can get employment of this kind. On the other hand, if he wishes to get a good job, one with better chances for promotion, or if he wishes to take up a profession, he should first seek a higher level of education."
Thomas David Harman, III:
"The chances for employment are rather slim. Students graduating now have had few chances to prove themselves. Not many employers are willing to employ graduates, about whom they know little."
"But there is always a place for the graduate who can see conditions, the wants, opportunities, and surpluses of the times, such a one will not be the person who is looking for employment."
Emanuel Hundey:
"If a graduate is leaving school just now it would be better for him to take any employment that is open for him, however humble. In the meantime he can be watching for a better position."
"In most cases, when the proper amount of time has passed most ills are cured. I think unemployment too will be remedied. A recognized fact is that it takes time to do anything."
Margaret Bower:
"The high school graduate of today faces a more difficult problem, than ever before. The various fields of work for which they have tried to fit themselves are overcrowded to the extent that college men and women are vying for the positions. These people have spent a great deal of time and money on education and are, therefore, much better prepared for the different kinds of work."
Earl Gordon:
"Very poor. An old adage goes, 'Like is just what you make it'. This has a great deal to do with finding employment, too."
"As statistics show that one out of every ten gains employment after graduating from high school, the thing to do is to be the 'one.'"

KIWANIS TO AWARD KEYS

Two Activities Medals To Be Given To Senior Boy and Girl.

For the fourth time in the history of Circleville high school, activities keys will be awarded by the Kiwanis club to a Senior boy and girl.

The award is based upon the senior's scholarship and his interest in school activities. His scholastic average is taken and points are added for each activity he or she participates in.

In 1930, the keys were awarded to John Heiskell and Elizabeth Roundhouse. Robert Rooney and Doris Peters received them in 1932. No keys were awarded in 1933.

The awarding this year will be made at a future meeting of the Kiwanis club.

Teachers to Spend Vacations Home

Home seems to appear rather inviting to the members of the faculty this year, since several of them intend to spend their vacations there. Others have not as yet decided where they will go.

Miss Mattinson and Miss Pigman will return to their respective homes in South Charleston and Cincinnati, Ohio.

Miss Hitler, Miss Ryan, Miss Yates, and Mr. Watts will remain at their places of residence in Circleville.

Mr. Herberholz will spend a part of the summer in Circleville and the other part in Cincinnati, Ohio, as supervisor of playgrounds. Mr. Povenmire will go to a retreat in Orland Park, Illinois, during the greater portion of his vacation. The rest of the time he will spend with his relatives in Columbus.
Mr. Keller will go to his home in Attica, Ohio.
Mr. Lea and Mrs. Fries will go to school at Ohio State university.
Mr. Cress will visit at Reynold's Lake in Lawrence, Michigan.
Mr. Gephart will be at home during his vacation.
Miss Tootle will probably be at her home near Williamsport.
Miss Rains is still undecided, but she is planning a trip for the summer.

Mr. Fischer, Miss Watson, Mr. Daley, Miss Brown, and Mr. Eowen have not yet completed their plans for the summer months.
Mr. Zaenglein will probably continue to recuperate in the city.

Did You Know

By Pat J. Kierlin

THAT Pickaway-co medical science performed its first outstanding feat, a blood transfusion, on Oct. 22, 1874. Edward Wells was a bright-looking 22-year-old Walnut-twp lad and worked on his father's farm. In early September of 1874 he was stricken with typhoid fever. His case grew worse and he suffered more each day. Four weeks elapsed and young Wells fell into unconsciousness.

Wells' father hurriedly hitched his horse to a buggy on Thursday morning, Oct. 22, 1874, and started for Circleville to get Dr. Nelson Turney, the family doctor and one of the city's best physicians. Typical of the physician of old, Dr. Turney quickly grabbed his medicine bag and drove with Mr. Wells to the boy's bedside.

When Dr. Turney reached the stricken youth's home, he ordered the older Wells to drive to Nebraska, Walnut-twp, and bring Dr. Jones to the house. In the meantime, he prepared for the transfusion.

Mrs. Wells went out into a field and brought in a three-week-old lamb. Dr. Turney scraped a patch of wool from the lamb's neck and opened an artery into which he inserted a silver tube about three inches long. Then Dr. Jones arrived to assist him.

At the elbow of young Wells' left arm, an opening was made and a silver tube injected. The tube was brought in and placed at the bedside of the youth. The two silver tubes were connected by a small rubber tube, 12 inches long and one-eighth of an inch in diameter.

AFTER the connection was made, the lamb's blood began to flow into the youth's left arm. Young Wells remained unconscious during the entire operation. The lamb's heart began to beat faster forcing more blood into the arm.

After ten minutes had elapsed, Dr. Turney severed the connecting tubes and announced that seven ounces of blood had been injected into the arm. The lamb was removed from a table and placed on the floor. Weak from exhaustion, it was unable to stand upright for three days.

This transfusion, the first in Pickaway-co was not a success, as the young patient lived but several hours after the operation.

Although unsuccessful, Circleville newspapers gave several columns of space to the delicate operation. They pointed out that the first blood transfusion took place in Paris in 1800. By the early 19th century, medical science had improved its method and was finishing the operations with comparative success. A lamb was used in all cases during this early period and it was not until several years later that the blood of humans was used in the transfusions.

That in November, 1874, Pickaway-co was honored with the elections of Hon. A. T. Walling to the Congress of the United States and Professor C. S. Smart, superintendent of the city's schools, to the post of state director of education. The congressional district which elected Mr. Walling was composed of Franklin, Fairfield, Perry and Pickaway counties. He served two terms in the national House of Representatives, where in 1876 during the Hayes-Tilden election controversy, he made himself famous with the declaration, "If fraud is law, filibustering is patriotism." Prof. Smart assumed his duties in February, 1875, and served four years. He had an excellent record when he left the post.

FOOD SHORTAGE SEEN IF DROUGHT GOES ON; NO RELIEF PREDICTED

Mercury Climbs Far Over 100 in Various Parts of Country

10 DEAD IN CHICAGO

Only Half of Crop Yield Estimated

CHICAGO, June 2.—Prayers of sweltering millions in the parched central states went unheeded today with drought and record-breaking heat spreading further destruction among farm crops of the middle west.

Unless general rains fall over the sun-baked plains states within two weeks a food shortage is imminent, agricultural experts admitted. Dr. W. C. Coffey, federal farm relief director for the north-west, declared:

"The truth is the United States is threatened with a food shortage. Should the drought remain unbroken for another two weeks practically every section of the country known as the food surplus producing area, will be wiped out. The situation is acute."

OFFER NO RELIEF

Yet government weather experts could offer no immediate hope of relief. Temperatures that climbed well above the 100 degree mark yesterday in many areas still held sway. There was still no promise of general rains, although conditions in the upper air strata were forecast as "unsettled."

A broiling sun that was blamed for ten deaths here, in Chicago, blazed down out of virtually cloudless skies. Crops that have thus far withstood the ravages of the long-continued drought were being parched in the fields.

Heavy local storms at St. Louis and at Urbana, Ill., brought relief to those sections. Rain, followed by hail, broke a 105 degree heat wave at Urbana.

Only once before in Chicago's history was the official maximum temperature of 102.2 degrees exceeded. That was in July, 1901. The sweltering temperature caused ten deaths here eight others were reported dying and two met death by drowning.

Downstate Illinois fared worse, with temperatures of 107 degrees reported at Ottawa, Bloomington, Hoopston and Morris.

All records went by the board at Milwaukee with an official recording of 104 degrees.

The mercury climbed to 108 at New Ulm, Minn.

LAST 24 HOURS MORE

Weather reports indicated that the extreme heat would continue for another 24 hours at least over most of the middle west.

Drought conditions were becoming increasingly more acute. Total precipitation for the year has been only 4.56 inches as compared with the normal fall of 13.04.

Furnishing feed for livestock, particularly dairy cattle, presented the gravest problem. Metropolitan

MYSTERY GRAVE TO BE OPENED

Iowans Believe It May Be Grave of Dead Gangster; Buried Last Night.

FAIRFIELD, Iowa, June 2.—Authorities prepared to open a mysterious grave in an isolated district near here today in the belief that a murder victim or a gangster may have been buried there.

Sheriff Lane Stansberry expressed the belief that some outlaw, possibly John Dillinger, America's public enemy No. 1, had been buried there. The grave was found by Claude Stevenson, a farmer. He said it had been dug yesterday.

The sheriff said he based his belief on the fact that a large automobile bearing foreign license plates was seen in the vicinity where the grave was found shortly after dusk last night. The automobile, sheriff Stansberry said, was also seen earlier in the week, carrying several well dressed men.

No one in the neighborhood could account for the presence of the automobile.

TWO RELEASED

Burton Conrad and John Hanley, arrested Friday evening for intoxication, were released by Mayor W. B. Cady with a lecture.

Efforts of Playmate Fail to Save Muhlberg-twp Youth, Friday

DARBY CREEK SCENE

Discards Inner Tube, Sinks to Watery Grave

Leaping into a 20-foot hole in Darby creek, three miles north of Darbyville, Friday afternoon, John Virgil Johnson, 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Johnson, of near Darbyville, drowned despite efforts of his playmate, Eugene Ward, 13, to save him.

Dr. C. E. Bowers, county coroner, who investigated the drowning with Deputy Sheriff Bryan Custer, pronounced the death accidental.

The youths left the Johnson home at 1:30 p. m. and started to play in the creek about an hour later. The Johnson boy could not swim, it is reported, but took an automobile inner tube with him. He swam with the aid of the tube for a while but tossed it to the shore thinking he could remain above the water without it.

RAN FOR HELP

He again leaped into the creek and immediately went down. It is reported the Ward boy, who could swim, went in after him but almost drowned trying to get him out. The Ward boy, seeing that he could not rescue the stricken youth, swam from the water and called workmen in an adjoining field.

Several men came to the scene and broke a boat loose from the shore. The youth was drowned before they could recover him. He had been in the water about 30 minutes.

The location of the fatality is on the Mill Carpenter farm. Besides his parents, a half-brother, Howard Johnson, of Columbus, survives the youth.

CALLANDER, Ont., June 2.—Fire last night threatened the lives of the quintuplet daughters of Mrs. Alzire Legros Dionne who were 122 hours old at 6 a. m. today.

The threatened fire was caused by an overheated fire in the new stove that was placed in the barren living room of the Dionne family.

The stove was donated by neighbors when an unexpected cold spell struck this northern wilderness and made it almost impossible to keep the five young daughters warm in their incubator and large basket.

Mrs. Dionne, the 25-year-old mother and her five newly born quintuplets were in their bedroom less than five feet from the roaring fire.

The Church Invites You

WHAT IS REAL LIFE?

We are so busy making a living that we often forget that it is more important to make a life. We forget that real life is eternal life which Christ says is "to know the only true God." This involves relationship, companionship and friendship.

The highest and best life is found in relationship with the highest and best person. To know God is to know Him as our best friend—something more than knowing a fact.

The church exists to effect relationship, companionship and friendship with God and a fellowship with His children. Why not accept the invitation and COME TO CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY?

D. CARL YODER.

Home Education

The Baby in the Basket
 Thirty four years ago during one of India's most horrible famines, a starving mother came to a mission home at Damoh. On her head she carried a basket and in that basket was her baby. Would the Sahib and Mamaji missionaries take her child so that he would not die?

The missionaries took the child and cared for him. He in time became a good student, a great athlete and was honest, clean and fair. He was the same sort of boy scout and above all a true Christian leader. As he became older he was made head man of the industrial shop and there today he teaches the boys of India the dignity of labor. He is a boy scout leader and of great influence in the community. He and his family provide just one example of what Christianity is doing for home life in India.

A resolution inviting the Roman Catholic, Protestant and Jewish church in the United States to engage in a united campaign to clean the motion picture industry of its unwholesome elements, was introduced at the convention of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of New York recently.

Deep under the debris of centuries the ruins of the temple of Dagon have been uncovered by archaeologists from the University of Pennsylvania museum.

This is the first time a temple definitely mentioned in the Old Testament has been unearthed. Saul's head was fastened in the temple of Dagon according to the Bible story. By the side of the temple, excavations revealed the ruins of the house of Ashtaroth also mentioned in the Bible as the place where the Philistines placed the armor of Saul as related in the first book of Samuel.

Book Review

THE MESSAGE OF THE PARABLES by McFadyen, Funk and Wagnalls Co. in 33 chapters discusses the parables of Jesus one by one, revealing new angles in them and new reasons for their power upon the minds of men. The whole is an interesting and illuminating study of the little stories used so effectively in presenting his teachings.

He is wise who says nothing when he has nothing to say.

World Religious News

Dr. Harold Hough, dean of Drew Seminary, has been invited to deliver the annual sermon next September in the Cathedral in Switzerland before the League of Nations.

William Phelps Hall was elected president of the American Tract Society for the 29th time at the recent annual meeting in the Collegiate Church of St. Nicholas, New York.

During the past year the Jerry McAuley Water Street Mission in New York supplied 106,847 free meals and 18,885 free beds. More than 500 gospel services were held, at which 6,294 men expressed determination to accept Christ. The mission was started by Jerry McAuley, a reformed convict. It represented the first attempt to minister to the physical and spiritual needs of men in an effort at rehabilitation.

Brotherhood Day which was observed by Christians and Jews throughout the United States Sunday, April 29th, was also observed in Hawaii at a Brotherhood service held in the Buddhist Temple.

A resolution inviting the Roman Catholic, Protestant and Jewish church in the United States to engage in a united campaign to clean the motion picture industry of its unwholesome elements, was introduced at the convention of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of New York recently.

Deep under the debris of centuries the ruins of the temple of Dagon have been uncovered by archaeologists from the University of Pennsylvania museum.

This is the first time a temple definitely mentioned in the Old Testament has been unearthed. Saul's head was fastened in the temple of Dagon according to the Bible story. By the side of the temple, excavations revealed the ruins of the house of Ashtaroth also mentioned in the Bible as the place where the Philistines placed the armor of Saul as related in the first book of Samuel.

He is wise who says nothing when he has nothing to say.

LESSON

Lesson for June 3

JESUS IN THE SHADOW OF THE CROSS

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 26:31-45. GOLDEN TEXT—And he went a little farther, and fell on his face, and prayed, saying, O my Father, if it be possible, let this cup pass from me; nevertheless not as I will, but as thou wilt. Matthew 26:39.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Praying. JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus in Gethsemane. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Jesus Praying in the Garden. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Gethsemane.

1. Plotting the Death of Jesus (vv. 1-5).

Jesus, with divine insight, predicted not only the fact of his death but its time and manner. He was not taken by surprise since for this pre-eminence purpose he came into the world (Heb. 2:14). He deliberately walked up to death. He knew that the Passover would find its fulfillment in his death, for he was the antitypical lamb thereof. The Jewish authorities in secret conclave were plotting to silence his voice by putting him to death. It was the divine purpose that he die. In their wickedness they were plotting to do that which God had ordained. In spite of themselves they were moving in the line of God's decree.

2. Mary of Bethany Anoints Jesus (vv. 6-13).

1. The place of the act (vv. 6, 7). This anointing occurred when Jesus was at meat in Simon's house.
 2. The indignation of the disciples was in strange contrast with Mary's love. Judas Iscariot was the leader, but the whole apostolic company were led by him. The real thing that hurt Judas was the loss of the money for which the ointment might have been sold; not that he cared for the poor (John 12:5, 6).
 3. Mary defended by Christ (vv. 10-13). Jesus could not allow his most appreciative disciple to lie under this censure so he came to her rescue. In spite of their criticism, he had nothing but the highest praise for her deed. As a result of Christ's defense, Judas is so astutely rebuked that he hastens away to betray his Lord.

4. The meaning of this act (vv. 12, 13). By sitting at Jesus' feet in loving fellowship, she obtained a grasp of truth which none of the other disciples had. She saw that his body was to be broken and that his precious life was to go out. She entered into fellowship with his sufferings and the joys of his resurrection. This she showed in the symbolic act of lavishing her most precious possession upon him. Knowing that no living person could minister to him in that dread hour, she did this service in loving anticipation.

11. Jesus Betrayed (vv. 14-30).

1. The bargain of betrayal (vv. 14-16). Satan had so complete a mastery over Judas that he sold his Lord for the price of a slave (Exod. 21:32).
 2. The betrayal announced (vv. 17-20). This took place while they were eating the Passover. It may be that the reason for this announcement at this time was to afford Judas a last opportunity to repent. Jesus' words, "He that dipeth his hand with me in the dish the same shall betray me," revealed the darkness of the crime.

IV. The Disciples Warned (vv. 31-35).

This took place as they walked from the upper room to the Garden of Gethsemane. He plainly told them, "All ye shall be offended because of me this night," quoting Zechariah 13:7 as proof. Peter vehemently protested that although all should forsake him, he would not. How little Peter knew of his weakness. His self-confidence was his snare.

V. Jesus Praying (vv. 36-46).

1. The place—the Garden of Gethsemane (v. 36). Gethsemane means "oil press." It was a place some three-quarters of a mile east of Jerusalem where oil was crushed out of the olives.
 2. His companions (v. 37). Peter, James, and John, who had been with him on the Mount of Transfiguration, are permitted to go with him in the deep shadow of the garden.

3. Jesus sorrowing even unto death (vv. 37, 38). The cause of his suffering was not primarily physical but spiritual. He was being made sin for us (II Cor. 5:21).
 4. The prayer itself (v. 39). "O my Father, if it be possible, let this cup pass from me." What was this cup? It was not a prayer to be delivered from the cross. The idea that he desired to escape from the cross and thus stop all his redemptive work is not to be entertained. Redemption through the sacrifice of himself was the supreme purpose of his coming into the world. The holiness and perfection of his nature moved him to shrink from the mountain of sin which was resting upon him. Though the cup was bitter he bowed in submission to the Father's will.

Eshelman Feeds Annex First Shut-out Victory

Eshelman Feeds knocked off the first shut-out of the year Friday evening winning from the Given Oils by an 8-0 count. All the Eshelman scoring was done in the first three innings with Ike Davis on the mound for the colored team. Bob Jones stopped the Feeds cold after he took the hill.

Eddie Callahan was supreme. He had the Given swinging at balls two feet over their heads and never in trouble. The only runner the Oils got to third base was Maynard Johnson who singled in the ninth inning, stole second, went to third when Lewis was out to the first basemen. Callahan put on the brakes with only one out and fanned Jackson and A. Jones to end the game.

ONLY FOUR ERRORS
Fewer errors occurred in this game than in any played to date, each team being guilty of only two. The Eshelman's got 11 hits against four for the losers. Callahan besides pitching masterfully hit a double and triple.

Charles Scott and Jim Dade umpired the game. Sunday afternoon the Circle City dairy and the Circleville Oils meet at 2 o'clock in a regular league game postponed from Tuesday evening. George Crum will make his appearance as the king mogul of the Oils team and promised a stronger club. He has added Don and Howard White to his roster, helping the team's speed.

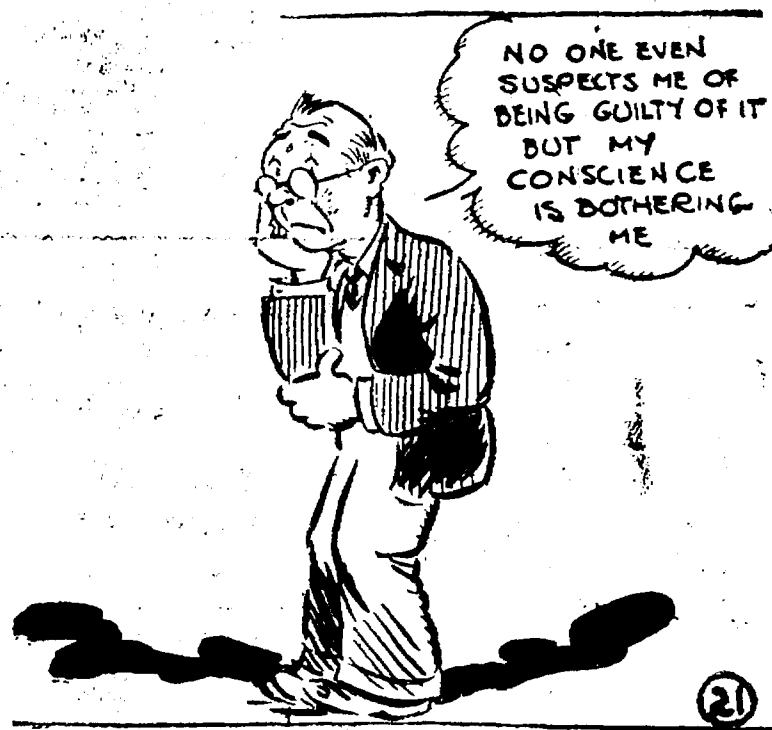

Earl Imler's dairymen are coming fast and should make things plenty exciting for the Circleville Oils.

NEXT WEEK'S GAMES

Next week finds the Container Corporation and the Circleville City dairies tangling in the Monday evening game.

About This And That

BY THE SECOND GUESSER

THIS RIGHT-HANDED PITCHING marvel, Jerome Herman Dean, known to you guys as the Great Dizzy, went out Friday and did his brother, Paul, Dizzy the Younger, some good in a financial way—Jerome Herman refused to ascend the mound for his St. Louis Cardinal team until Paul's salary was boosted to five grand—Jerome Herman's strike is now ended and everything is calm in the Cardinal camp; the amount of salary increase was not announced ***

These Dean boys have won 11 ball games for the Cardinals, six for Big Dizzy, five for Little Dizzy, who is hurting his first season with the Bretonites ***

This might be a mighty risky gamble but Eddie Callahan, Eshelman pitcher, tried it and finished ahead Friday evening *** He offered to buy a beer for every hit the Given Oil team obtained, in return for a beer every time he fanned a batter *** Someone took him up, we know not who, and Callahan finished ahead by nine beers *** He fanned 13 while four safeties were gleamed off his delivery ***

WE'D ADVISE THE COLUMBUS Red Birds to recall Tom Angley, Eddie Delker and a few other ball players if they want to go anywhere in the association race *** The Birds are getting pretty fair pitching but the batting department has been almost nil for quite a while *** Angley and Delker are both out on 24-hour option; Elmira is their stopping place ***

ORLEANS, Mass., June 2—Struck over the heart by a foul tip while he was umpiring a twilight baseball game between Orleans and Brewster, John Demotte, 28, formerly of New York and a step-son of Charles Neville Buck, novelist, was dead today.

BIRDS BLOW LEAD

COLUMBUS, June 2—Smarter from the second defeat handed them in as many days in Louisville, the fourth-place Columbus Red Birds were to meet the Colonels again this afternoon.

Playing before a ladies' day crowd of 3,000, the Red Birds fought to a 4 to 4 score until the ninth when they dropped the decision by one run, 5 to 4. Funk, Louisville third sacker, hit the single that scored Olivares with the winning run.

Weinert and Bass served them for the Colonels and Cross and Teachout pitched for the Red Birds.

TOLEDO, June 2—The first game of the current Indianapolis-Toledo series was marked up as a loss by the Mud Hens today after they suffered a 4 to 1 defeat at the hands of the Indians.

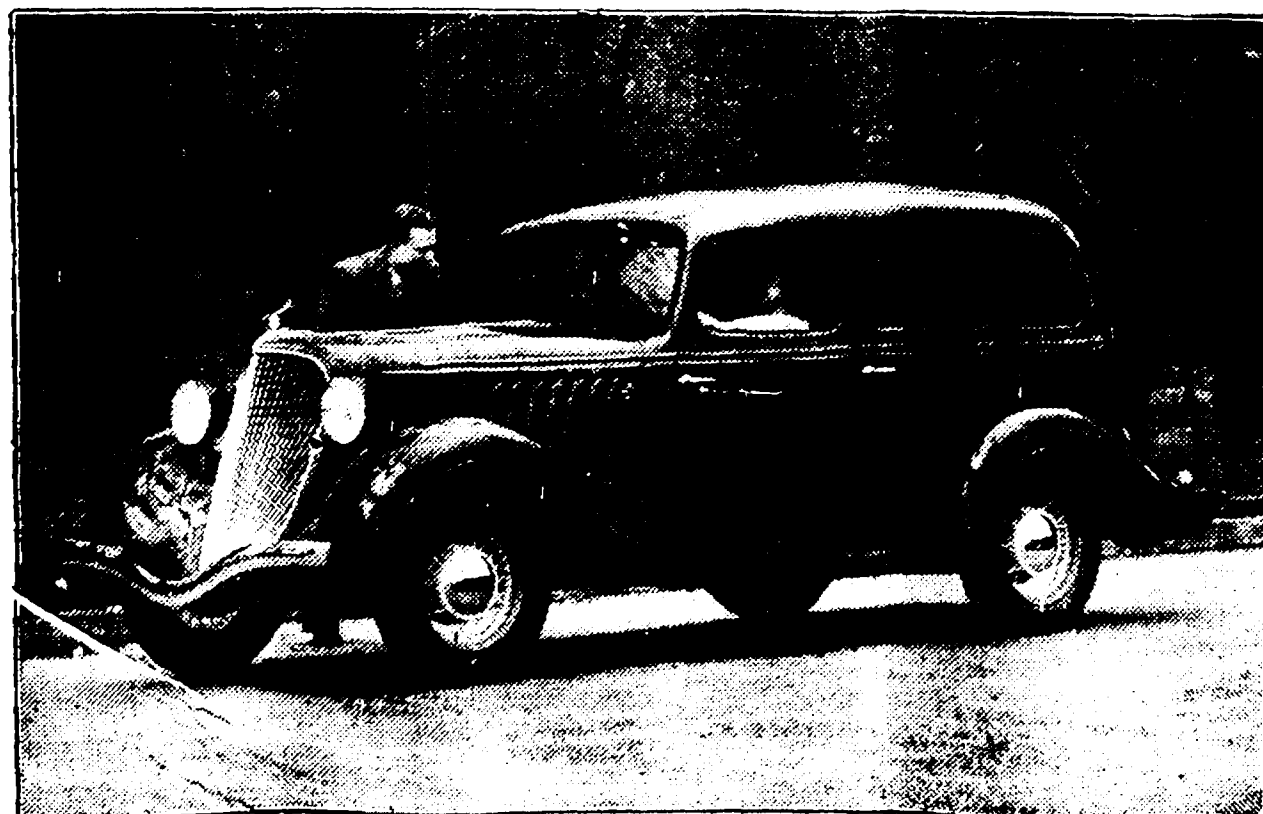

Turner, the Indian hurler, held the local American Association club to five scattered hits and pitched shut-out ball until the ninth when Toledo scored its lone tally.

Larkin and Sundra did the twirling for the Mud Hens.

Kitty In Mail Box

WATERTOWN, Mass.—Someone mailed a small black and white kitten in one of Uncle Sam's mailboxes but forgot to place a stamp and address on the feline. He scampered away when the collector opened the box to collect mail.

SHORTAGE

Chicago and other cities of Illinois were facing a threatened milk shortage due to pasturage destruction.

The yield of four leading grain crops will be only 54.3 per cent of normal, according to surveys issued by four Chicago board of trade crop experts. Drought has wiped out the nation's wheat surplus, it was further asserted.

Due principally to the feed shortage hog receipts at the un on stockyards totaled 20,000 animals. Pigs sold as low as 50 cents a hundredweight. Flour prices rose 26 to 50 cents a barrel due to the destruction of wheat fields.

Recognizing an "unprecedented emergency" due to the drought, Gov. Floyd B. Olson of Minnesota declared an embargo against all cattle being sent into the state for purposes other than slaughter. This action was taken to conserve Minnesota's depleted feed and fodder supplies.

Airplanes were sent to all sections of the northwest forage area. Reports from western Minnesota said that peace officers were shooting dying cattle in several sectors.

The Herald's Williams Feeds was the only one to give away a prize. Miss Mary, friend, Miss Mary, Lily Chapel, Chillicothe over the Jay Davis of the visiting with Alfred Frank Seeds is much better this time.

Several boys and girls attended the circus parade in Columbus Saturday.

There will be a 4-H club meeting at the school house, Friday afternoon.

CHAPTER THIRTY-SEVEN

Stanley poked up the fire and put away the tea things. She laid the chops for dinner in their pan and put two potatoes over the flame to boil and prepared a salad. In the next room, now that Marcia and Gerda were gone, she could hear the steady clack of John Harmon's typewriter.

She had had a bad fifteen minutes, but now that she was alone she found that she was oddly, coldly detached. Her hands did things mechanically. Her mind worked in much the same way.

Drew was engaged. . . . Drew was going to be married. . . . In June. . . . to a girl named Janet. . . . That ought to end everything, settle the whole foolish situation once and for all—but it didn't. Any more than her marrying John Harmon had ended everything—settled anything. This feeling that she had for Drew was something between Drew and herself, and nothing else could possibly alter or affect it. There had been a time when she had felt that this wasn't so, when she had thought that surely the love she had for John Harmon must completely destroy the desire that she had for Drew. But now she had clung to this belief pathetically and now she relinquished it with a dumb sort of pain—but relinquished it she did. For she knew now, when she faced the fact of his marriage, that nothing was changed, that nothing—not John Harmon, nor the girl in Chicago, nor Drew's utter and unbroken silence—could alter the feeling which at the mere mention of his name possessed her.

Suddenly she felt tired and horribly lonely. She knew a great desire to go to John Harmon; to tell him everything, find solace and comfort and forgetfulness in the pressure of his steady arms, blot out the memory of Drew's hot, demanding kisses with the sweetness of John Harmon's tender ones; and thus in abandoning herself to the gentleness of John Harmon's love gain release from that other, and less worthy emotion.

She crossed the room and threw open the door to the study. John Harmon was bent over his typewriter, his hair rumpled, his eyes tired, but his smile, weary though it was, was full of welcome.

"Hello, Stan. What the devil's the matter? You look completely fagged—those women too much for you?"

Looking at him sitting there, worn and unmistakably fagged himself, Stanley knew suddenly that she was not going to tell him anything—not now, at least, when he was so obviously in need of rest and food and relaxation himself.

"Just about—and you've worked quite long enough for one day. How's it going?" She motioned to the pile of manuscript he had piled up since lunch.

"It's going fine," John Harmon sat back in his chair and ran his fingers through his hair, his eyes shining through his fatigue. "I've caught something this time, Stanley, something real and warm and pulsing. It's the sort of thing I used to dream about doing—and then deserted for the other, you know, the clever situation, the amusing phrase. That sort of thing—I can't get away from it entirely—I'm not sure I want to—but it's relegated to where it belongs. It's no longer the end and aim of my writing. My people are real this time. Stan, they sacrifice a lot in cleverness, a lot in brilliance—but they're human, human way through."

"I'm glad, John Harmon, glad Dennis was right, glad she had the courage to tell you, glad you had the courage to find yourself again. Life isn't always as simple as that. She turned abruptly and went back to her gas plate, tying an apron over her blue frock.

John Harmon drew a hand across rather puzzled brown eyes—Stanley had sounded a bit fed up with things, a bit cynical, unlike herself. Had those women been disagreeable, made her restless, dissatisfied? But that wasn't fair to Stanley, to her good sense, her beautiful loyalty. He washed his hands, brushed his hair and went out to help her get the supper.

"I don't want Drew, darling, I want you. Will you believe that, John Harmon—always?"

Stanley was turning the chops in their iron pan, her back to him.

"Shall I fix the coffee?" he asked, with a rather apparent attempt at cheerfulness.

"If you want to."

He did so, wishing it required more effort. He felt awkward, helpless in the face of Stanley's continued silence. "Let's leave the dishes and go to a movie," he suggested with a simulated eagerness, rearranging an already perfectly set table.

"You know I don't like to leave the dishes, and anyway we can't afford movies twice a week—we've been once already."

"Well, I guess it won't break us to go again. Or perhaps you'd like to take a walk—it's going to be a grand night for walking."

Stanley transferred the chops to a small platter, took up the potatoes and turned to the ice-box for the salads.

"Can't I help you?" John Harmon stood just behind her, anxious-eyed, wondering what it was all about.

Slowly Stanley swung around and faced him. "I don't know whether you can or not, Drew is being married—in June."

She looked away swiftly, hating herself for having hurt him like that! hating him for letting her see that she had.

"Oh," he said slowly, his hands slipping away from where they had had rested lightly on her shoulders. "Drew, I'm afraid I've nearly forgotten about—Drew, Stanley."

"I thought I had too—and now I find I haven't. I don't suppose I should have told you, John Harmon, a wife isn't supposed to tell her husband that she is—upset because a former lover is getting himself married." Stanley's voice broke on a high, thin note; for a horrifying moment she thought she was going to cry, or laugh foolishly, but she didn't, because John Harmon put his arms about her suddenly and held her fiercely to his heart.

"Don't talk about it any more—not right now anyway. And I'm glad you told me, darling."

He picked her up abruptly and carried her to the wing chair and sat down with her still in his arms.

Highest Radio Tower

DENVER—The highest self-supporting radio broadcasting tower in the United States was recently completed at the new plant of KOA, the National Broadcasting Company's Denver station, 12 miles east of the state capital here. It was connected to a new 50,000-watt transmitter, to be put in to service about June 1. The tower is 470 feet in height.

Medical men say one night of poker may shorten a man's life by a year. There are instances where it has been fatal on the spot to some players.

THE INVISIBLE GOOD

The countless throng pushes on
Toward office, shop or to play;
It hurries so fast along
Like night a chasing the day;
Each one with a mission lone
Concealed from the passer-by;
Each one with a joy unknown,
And each one with a muffled cry.

You think it's a selfish throng
As it hastens on its way?
In that you may be so wrong
As prejudice you obey.
For if you could see the soul
Of the crowd that pushes on,
Its virtues you would extol,
And your blame would be all gone.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

President May Have Steering Committee to Guide NRA

WASHINGTON — Two prominent Englishmen, looking over the New Deal independently of each other recently made identical criticisms. . . . They were Sir Stafford Cripps, left wing Labor leader, and John Maynard Keynes, famous economist. Both said that what the New Deal needed was a plan. They felt it was wandering rudderless from one policy to another without rhyme or reason. . . . Whether or not this is a valid criticism, it is being taken seriously by some of the President's close advisers, especially a little group which argued with Keynes last week for several hours. . . . As a result it is highly probable that this summer will see a little steering committee functioning at the President's right hand to keep the New Deal on a more even course.

Sentiment

Mrs. Anna Eleanor Roosevelt is as practical a First Lady as ever presided over the White House. . . . But she has a deep sentimental streak. Only her intimate friends know why she is never without the thin gold chain around her neck, or what is on the end of it. . . . The chain is a wedding gift from the President, and on it is attached a gold locket, bearing on one side the initials AER, and on the other FDR. . . . The initialing is etched in diamonds.

Believe it or not, throughout the hour-and-a-half auto ride of General Hugh Johnson and Clarence Darrow by Johnson's invitation the subject of the NRA, or Darrow's report on it, never once was touched on—not even remotely.

Each man waited for the other to raise the question and neither did. . . . The conversation got started on General Grant, and by the time the visit was over had got down to Hannibal.

The Census Bureau is not all dry statistics. Says Dr. Stuart A. Rice, Assistant Director: "To the average person the word 'census' suggests an individual, who, in the words of a high school essay, 'grows around every ten years from house to house increasing the population.'"

Hog Caller

Democratic senatorial campaigns this year are nationally-dia affairs. . . . Ohio's Representative Charles V. Truax, who notes in his Congressional Directory biography that he has sold hogs to breeders in every state of the Union, and who is after the scalp of Senator Simeon D. Fess, recently refused to attend a dinner to which the latter also had been invited. . . . And Texas' Senator Tom Connolly, who has the secret good wishes of the Administration in his re-nomination duel with Young Joe Bailey, grandstanding first-term Congressman, never refers to the latter, gives no indication that he considers him even in the race. . . . The California's able Congresswoman Florence Kahn is totally immune from the traditional feminine fear of mice, but has an unreasoning dread of cats. . . . The Senate committee investigating receivership and bankruptcy practice in Federal Courts has uncovered the amazing fact that in three California cities federal judges allowed fees totalling more than $9,000,000 in a little over two years.

Unsweetered

Sugar is causing more pains and more crusty tempers to those in and out of the Administration than almost any other commodity. . . . Individual sugar companies have been lobbying for bigger quotas within the United States. Island possessions have been sparring for bigger quotas from without the United States. Puerto Rico and Hawaii got the small end of the deal. . . . The Philippines quota was fixed in a private conversation between Quezon and Roosevelt last winter and couldn't be changed.

The Cuban quota was fixed by Sumner Welles, former Ambassador, and wouldn't be changed. Finally he gave away about as much of the Cuban quota as Mrs. Rainey puts in her coffee. (Six lumps). . . . Domestic sugar companies lobbying for bigger quotas have had hard sledding. They used to lobby in Congressional offices. But in this case, the Agricultural crowd runs the show and wouldn't let the lobbyists within shouting distance. . . . Result: the lobbyists approached their Congressmen, and their Congressmen turned lobbyists. They flooded the halls of the AAA. . . . The weirdest incident of the sugar turmoil, however, was performed by Pat Harrison, wise-cracking Senator from Mississippi. Not often does a Senator say that he wants nothing for his constituents. . . . But Pat did. . . . He told the AAA that he wanted no benefit payments for the molasses and syrup makers of Mississippi. There are about 108,000 small molasses-makers in Pat's state.

New York's drinkers now are permitted to take their standing. But how long can they remain standing is the question.

Miss Frances Perkins says that workers must receive "a significant proportion" of the income of industry. Significant of what?

Women Safer Drivers

Denver—Women are safer drivers than men, according to a survey of Denver traffic accidents made by CWA workers under Gustav E. Bittner and Carl Volz, engineers. Their figures showed that but 5 per cent of the motorists involved in fatal accidents during 1932 and 1933 were of the fairer sex. The largest number of automobile deaths, they also discovered, were caused by cars driven by persons between the ages of 16 and 20 years.

When the much-married Peggy Hopkins Joyce appeared in a New York court to testify in the Harman National bank trial, a clerk had to show her the way to the witness stand. Peggy, however, has never had any trouble in finding her way to the altar.

Fat folks should take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salt in a glass of hot water in the morning before breakfast—it's the SAFE, harmless way to reduce as fast as thousands of men and women know.

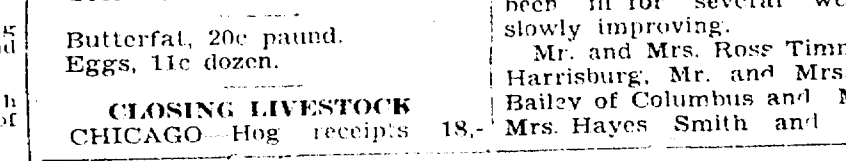

For your health's sake ask for and get Kruschen at any drug store. It costs for a bottle that lasts 4 weeks but a trifle and if after the first bottle you are not joyfully satisfied with results—money back.

The Value of a Course in Physics

EDITOR'S NOTE:—This is the first of a series of articles by the students of the Circleville high school, pointing out the value of certain elective courses in the curriculum.

By FRED WATTS

COURSES given in high school are for either cultural or practical value. Physics has both cultural and practical values. In this article both of these values will be pointed out.

The fundamental principles, as taught in physics, will enable the student to understand the operation of machines and devices that surround him in every day life.

It was supposed that several years ago the automobile had reached the height of perfection, and there were no new changes to be made. Immediately following that thought we had free-wheeling, floating power, no-draft ventilation, streamlining, knee-action, air balloons, tires, and what not—in all which a high school student is very much interested. All of these inventions are closely related to important principles in physics which today make up a very large part of the discussion in a physics recitation.

It is the physicist that has developed the marvels of this modern age; for example, the engineer plans the railroad with its bridges, tunnels and grades, together with the locomotive and its trains. Every step of this process requires a knowledge of physics. It is the physicist that has developed the discovery and application of physical laws that scientists and inventors have produced the telescope, telephone, steam engine, electric car, and many appliances which form so important a part of everyday life.

The high school physics student of today will be the physicist of tomorrow. What is in store for the physicist of the future? That is a question which no one can answer for himself. For instance, who has predicted a century ago the marvels of this day? One invention can open up fields heretofore unheard of. Thus the discovery of the X-ray in 1895 gave insight as to the structure of matter which has been the foundation of a large portion of modern physics.

Physics, probably more than any other high school subject, encourages straight thinking and develops reasoning ability.

It is to him who speaks before thinking, or jumps at conclusions in the physics class! Making the acquaintance through biographies of the great physicists of the past and the hardships they had to overcome in order to follow their chosen work and make a contribution to world knowledge is very encouraging. Imagine a giant like Newton starting life as a three pounder!

Who looked with wonder at the chemist who, we thought, was going to produce life synthetically and solve the riddle of the universe? But today, through the bombardment of the molecule and the analysis of the ether waves and light rays, physics is fast taking the lead.

Seniors Write Autobiographies!

The experiences of the members of Miss Watson's first period Senior English are extensive, according to the papers handed in recently, each one telling the outstanding event in his life.

One of the becoming valedictorian of his class the most prominent incident in his life. To Polly Briggs, making friends is the most important thing of her high school career.

The foremost happening in Martha Rader's life was a trip from the Philippines to the United States. The outstanding event in Ned Hitchcock's life almost spelled disaster for him. He was, as he says, not too politely hit by an automobile and, as far as he is concerned, it need never happen again.

Floyd "Tumpy" Dunlap's most prominent occurrence is yet to come.

He says that he is going to leave this town and when he comes back he is going to buy it. We all wish you luck, Tumpy! Martha Mossbarger considers the time she spent in a loaded school bus the most thrilling and outstanding thing she has known. Two girls, Mary May and Helen Colville, considered a trip to the Century of Progress last summer the happenings of most prominence and interest in their lives.

Robert Fricke thinks the time he almost burned to death when he was a boy something long to be remembered. Charlotte Moore considers the time she almost drowned. In 1928, the item of most interest in her life.

These events show that the members of the class of 1934 have had wide, interesting and thrilling experiences in their few years on earth.

YEAR HONOR ROLL LEAD BY JUNIORS

student opinion

Class Well Ahead During Entire Year; 31 Students Listed.

What, in your estimation, are the chances for high school graduates to procure employment?

William Ashbrook:

"People say there are no jobs. There are plenty, if one has the initiative to go out and get them. 'If a high school graduate wants to be a day laborer all of his life, he can get employment of this kind. On the other hand, if he wishes to get a good job, one with better chances for promotion, or if he wishes to take up a profession, he should first seek a higher level of education.'

Thomas David Harman, III:

"The chances for employment are rather slim. Students graduating now have had few chances to prove themselves. Not many employers are willing to employ graduates, about whom they know little.

"But there is always a place for the graduate who can set conditions, the wants, opportunities, and surpluses of the times, such a one will not be the person who is looking for employment."

Emanuel Hundey:

"If a graduate is leaving school just now it would be better for him to take any employment that is open for him, however humble. In the meantime he can be watching for a better position.

"In most cases, when the proper amount of time has passed most ills are cured. I think unemployment will be remedied. A recognition fact is that it takes time to do anything worth while."

Margaret Bower:

"The high school graduate of today faces a more difficult problem, than ever before. The various fields of work for which they have tried to fit themselves are overcrowded to the extent that college men and women are vying for the positions. These people have spent a great deal of time and money on a great lead of time and money on education and are, therefore, much better prepared for the different kinds of work.

Earl Gordon:

"Very poor. An old adage goes, 'Like is just what you make it.' This has a great deal to do with finding employment, too.

"As statistics show that one out of every ten gains employment after graduating from high school, the thing to do is to be the 'one.'

THANKS!

The Journalism class of Circleville high school wishes to thank THE CINCINNATI HERALD for their cordial cooperation in the publication of THE RED AND BLACK for the past 36 weeks.

ELIZABETH DOWDEN, Editor
GEORGE AMMER, In-Charge-of-Publication
FRANK FISCHER, Advisor.

The Juniors head the yearly honor roll with the names of nine members appearing on first honors.

Members of the class of 1934 who are on first honors are William Ammer, Wahitta Barnhart, Betty Binkley, Matilda Davis, Harold Doan, Jessie Dresbach, Alice Griner, and June West.

The list of names on second honor includes the following: Margaret Bower, Betty Brown, Ruby Chaffin, Ellen Clark, Helen Colville, Ann Denman, Charles Diehlman, Horace Gilmore, Lydia Given, Jane Littleton, Mary Ellen Maxey, Lucille May, Anne Vierhorne, Wilma Welch, and Evelyn Wolfe.

For the fourth time in the history of Circleville high school, activities keys will be awarded by the Kiwanis club to a Senior boy and girl.

The award is based upon the senior's scholarship and his interest in school activities. His scholastic average is taken and points are added for each activity he or she participates in.

In 1930, the keys were awarded to John Heiskell and Elizabeth Roundhouse; Robert Rooney and Doris Peters received them in 1932. No keys were awarded in 1933.

The awarding this year will be made at a future meeting of the Kiwanis club.

Teachers to Spend Vacations Home

Mr. Keller will go to his home in Attica, Ohio.

Mr. Lea and Mrs. Fries will go to school at Ohio State university.

Mr. Cress will visit at Reynolds' Lake in Lawrence, Michigan.

Miss Rains is still undecided, but she is planning a trip for the summer.

Mr. Fischer, Miss Watson, Mr. Daley, Miss Brown, and Mr. Povenmire have not yet completed their plans for the summer months.
